

F.I. GOLDHABER

P.O. Box 13334 ♦ Salem, OR 97309 ♦ (503) 302-3534 ♦ fi@goldhaber.net

F.I. Goldhaber's second poetry collection, Pairs of Poems was ranked number three in the Preditors & Editors readers poll for poems published in 2008. A professional writer for more than a quarter century, she was honored with a National Woman of Achievement Award by Women in Management, and has won a number of awards for her fiction and poetry.

She began her career as a reporter and editor at newspapers in three states, then worked as business writer, editor, and marketing communications consultant for corporate, government, and not-for-profit entities until 2001. She has had short stories, novelettes, poems, news stories, feature articles, essays, editorial columns, and reviews published in magazines, e-zines, newspapers, calendars, and anthologies as well as two erotica novels published under another name.

A graduate of the University of Washington, F.I. lives in western Oregon. She has judged the PNWA Literary Contest and the EPPIE Awards, read to elementary-school children as a SMART volunteer, and was active in Lions Clubs International serving as an Eye Courier and as president of two clubs.